

Charles JACOBS & Hannah Elizabeth WILSON

Name	Charles JACOBS
Birth	24 May 1842 at Hay Valley (from obit)
Parents	Henry JACOBS & Harriet Ann OVENS
Marriage	Hannah Elizabeth WILSON (Elizabeth) 1870 (issues with date)
Death	14 Nov 1927, possibly at North Adelaide.
Buried	Hay Valley Cemetery
Children	1

Note: There is an unresolved discrepancy in the birth date for Charles. Family History SA has Charles born 16 Sept 1845. The marriage transcript for Charles in 1870 gives a birth date of 1840 and his obit gives a birth date of 24 May 1842.

Charles was born at Hay Valley at a time when there were very few families in the district. His father Henry was a shepherd and timber cutter. He did not have much formal schooling because there were no schools in the district at that time. When he was sixteen, he was carting copper from Kapunda with a team of bullocks. A roving life appealed to him, and hand-reaping, fencing, and shearing were among his pursuits.

A marriage transcript has Charles (30yrs) marrying Hannah Elizabeth WILSON (known as Elizabeth) at the Registry Office, Adelaide. Elizabeth was listed as 40 years old when they married. There are two dates given for their marriage. The marriage transcript gives 8 September 1870 as the marriage date but the marriage announcement in the South Australian Chronicle on Saturday 11 June 1870 gives the marriage date as 30 May 1870. Elizabeth was recorded as being a widow from Hay Valley and her father was listed as William Morley

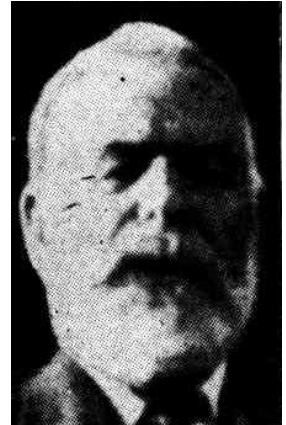

Name	Hannah Elizabeth WILSON (nee. MORLEY)
Birth	c.1830 (from marriage transcript)
Parents	William MORLEY
Marriage	Charles JACOBS 1870
Death	10 June 1889 at Hay Valley (59yrs)
Buried	Unknown
Children	1

I have yet to locate a reference for Elizabeth prior to her marrying Charles.

Mr. Charles Jacobs, a pioneer of South Australia, died recently in Adelaide. His father and mother were among the earliest colonists, his mother arriving in the Buffalo (Note: this is not correct). Mr. Jacobs was born at Hay Valley, Nairne, on May 24, 1842. and was the eldest of a family of ten children. Schools were few, and Mr. Jacobs had to be content with six months' education. Work began at an early age, and when he was sixteen he was carting copper from Kapunda with a team of bullocks. A roving life appealed to him, and hand-reaping, fencing, and shearing were among his pursuits. He retained a splendid memory to within a short time of his death. He used to say that when fencing swampy parts of the South-East he had to run the two bottom wires under water. On another occasion he was held up by blacks in the far north. Mr. Jacobs is well remembered for his unfailing help in cases of sickness. If anyone fell ill and he knew of it he was always on hand to assist. On one occasion he rode a horse 60 miles each way for a doctor. On the way back the doctor's horse broke down 10 miles from home, and Mr. Jacobs had to hand his horse over to the medical man. His only son, Mr. William Jacobs, is living at Hay Valley.
